Independent Churches of Christ (non-instrumental) (1832, merger; 1906 separation) - Iglesias de Cristo (no-instrumental = a cappella)

(Hispanic ministry in the USA began in 1919, in Abilene, TX; associated with Abilene Christian College in Texas and later with Pepperdine University in Los Angeles, CA, in the 1950s)

Note: there is no central headquarters; each local congregation is autonomous.

B2.603

Independent Christian churches & churches of Christ (1927, Indianapolis, IN; 1967-1969 separation)

Founded in 1927 at Indianapolis, Indiana, the North American Christian Convention was created as a conservative movement within the Christian Church-Disciples of Christ to counteract "modernizing" tendencies and theological Liberalism; support is given to Pacific Christian College [now known as Hope Christian University] in Fullerton, California, and to Standard Publishing Company in Cincinnati, Ohio; annual meetings are held of the North American Christian Convention; Sunday Schools are permitted and individual communion cups are used to celebrate the Lord's Supper; in 1987, there were 5,688 congregations with 1,086,950 reported members in the USA; this group of independent congregations promotes greater unity among churches and members within the Restoration movement.

Church of Christ in the West Indies -
Iglesia de Cristo en Las Antillas

(1935, incorporated in Puerto Rico in 1938)

The Church of Christ in the Antilles – La Iglesia de Cristo en Las Antillas (1935, Los Dolores del Río Grande, Puerto Rico) was founded by pastors associated with the ministry of Rev. Francisco Olazábal; in 1938, when the name of the denomination was changed to Christ Missionary Churches – Iglesias de Cristo Misionera, a small group of pastors retained the original name but in 1972 changed it to the Concilio Iglesia Universal de Jesucristo – Council of the Universal Church of Jesus Christ; the related churches are mainly located in Puerto Rico and the Eastern USA.
